10 Galleries to Visit Now in Brooklyn

By MARTHA SCHWENDENER APRIL 27, 2017

Bushwick

At Microscope in Bushwick, “flag #3” (2017) by Carver Audain.

Carver Audain ; Byron Smith for The New York Times

MICROSCOPE You can hit three galleries in one small building at 1329 Willoughby, including Microscope, Transmitter and Tiger Strikes Asteroid \(TSA\). Microscope has the most consistent and robust program, showcasing artists working in film, video, photography and sound. Carver Audain started off in the sound world, but his first show at Microscope has sculptures that respond to the motions and movements of visitors, and found objects like a tattered American flag. Both a video of the flag, waving wanly in the wind on a gray New York day, and the same flag mounted in a metal frame in the gallery, comment on the current and (presumably) sorry state of American politics.
